Summary

This is a personal evening phone call between Brandon and Gerald. The tone is warm and intimate throughout. The call opens with Gerald going through a difficult emotional period (“riding a low”), and Brandon offering reassurance (“This is just a dark cloud — it’s gonna turn up”). The conversation then flows through several light topics: Gerald picking up his pageant necklace and running into the pageant organizers, Brandon buying coffee beans for the office (and Robert always telling him to expense things, with Nicole on vacation), a lengthy tangent about the word “barista” and whether it’s Spanish, Gerald mentioning he wants to sign up his grandmother for life insurance, a discussion of the TV show Dynasty (Crystal vs. Alexis), and Gerald’s family situation (his grandmother from Virginia and a complicated family dynamic). Toward the end, Gerald shares that a friend connected him with a new weed source via Telegram, and they joke about it. The call ends with Gerald apologizing for being emotionally distant lately, Brandon reassuring him, and them making plans to talk again that evening after Gerald plays piano.

No business ideas, AI topics, or work projects were discussed in this call. This is a purely personal conversation.

Speaker Dialogue

Speaker key: B = Brandon | G = Gerald

[00:00–00:13] G: (mid-sentence) ...turn. B: Right. So, you know, this is just — this is fine. G: Yeah, just going through a little cloudy area. B: Exactly. It’s gonna turn, it’s gonna turn up. This is just a dark cloud. It’s gonna turn on again. G: Um, so — (overlapping) There’s gotta be a rainbow at the end of it, right? B: Right. Right. Yeah. I’m sure.

[00:19–00:41] G: Every — all the bad things come at the same time, all good things come at the same time. B: Normally in threes, I think. G: In threes? B: Mm-hmm. G: Okay. Well — (overlapping) We say that, yeah — well, three by three. B: Well, hopefully at least three then ten. G: Three, ten, I don’t know. Three, three, ten — that would be 30. B: Okay. Or 30 good things. G: Well, whenever you — oh, actually it's about the pageant today — B: Huh? G: Oh, sorry.

[00:43–01:41] (Pageant necklace story) B: Something about the pageant today? G: Oh yeah, I went to get my necklace from the people from the pageant. My necklace that they have for me. Anyway, I just got it, and they were looking at me, and they just kept looking at me, and they said like, "Oh, what are you doing right now?" da, da, da. I was like, "Oh, nothing." I just like doing a bunch of stuff on my own. And then they saw my Starbucks order. B: Ooh, yum. G: I got a grande frappuccino with cookie crumble chocolate with two extra shots of coffee. And they were like, "Oh, I guess nothing. Look at the coffee." 'Cause one of them is diabetic and he's retaining a bunch of weight. So he's like, "Oh, you're getting fat now." You know, trying to dismiss me. Like he's not committed to anything. It's like he's — nutrition.

[01:33–02:49] (Office coffee machine) G: We have one of those built-in espresso machines. Oh my God, I love it. Is it good? B: Or coffee machines, like in the cabinet, you know? G: I have a whole process. Well, you saw — I have my little double-shot espresso, and then my coffee, and then my matcha, and then I have my lemon ginger tea. B: Oh, I'd like to see that. G: I think I sent you a picture. Is it at the office? B: No, at the office, yeah. G: That's good. Free? B: Yeah. Well, normally it's free. I bought the beans this week because nobody else did, and I wanted fucking coffee, so. G: They said, "Well, you can expense it, but Nicole's on vacation. You won't get a check." B: I said, "I can buy coffee." Like, I don't — Robert's always like, "Expense," and Pat, "Say you got this." I'm like, "I can buy the office coffee. It's fine." It's like $10 on Amazon. G: Yeah, exactly. And you need it — it puts you in a mood to work. B: Yeah, and I have a routine — so it would fuck up my routine.

[02:38–03:21] (Coffee machine walkthrough) B: Well, you pull the machine out, and then you put the beans, and you put the water, and then you push it back in, and then you set if it's espresso shot or full coffee, and then push the button — it brews it. It's so good. G: Oof. Okay. And then it has a little spot if you wanna do the steamed milk and put it on the coffee so it's warm — you know? B: Yeah. G: Starbucks, sorry dude. Barista. B: Barista, right? G: Barista. Oh, but what is that even in Spanish for barista?

[03:05–05:26] (Barista etymology tangent) B: Uh — is that not Spanish? G: Um, I don't — it sounds Spanish already. I was gonna take a course in that. B: It sounds Spanish already. Barista? G: Barista. No, no, no, no, no. You're like — it's another name. (Gerald uses AI/browser to look up "barista") G: (reading) "A barista is a person who prepares coffee drinks, especially espresso-based ones." The word is commonly thought as entering English in the 1990s. B: Dang, it just came out? G: What is barista in Spanish? (asks AI) What is barista in Español? (AI responds) G: (reading) "In Spanish, bari—" Yeah, I know that, but... Oh, if you want I can also give you a difference between barista, camarero, mesero. B: No, no, no, I just wonder 'cause there's a course that they give for barista and I wanted to take at the Bartender Association. G: Oh — well, let me see. I can right-click and do... What the fuck? Normally you can just translate.

B: Trans — okay. G: And barista in Spanish is usually barista too, so. B: Fuck. G: Two losses. B: I was right twice.

[04:54–05:26] (Piano and schedule) G: That'll work out perfect 'cause I normally play piano until 9:00, so — 'cause it's so loud, but I don't want my neighbors ever to get disturbed, so I try to stop at 9:00. B: Okay. Well, I'm gonna — I'm here by 1:00. I'm just gonna pick up the dog and have this conversation. I will keep you posted, but I'll definitely — I've made time to talk to you tonight. I'm sorry that I've been a little bit out.

[05:51–06:21] (Gerald's grandmother / family situation) G: It's just that yesterday with my grandmother, I was talking to her a long time. Yeah, because the thing is — I don't know if I told you — this woman, my grandmother from Virginia, she took over — she took her husband. So to be talking to the first wife — grandmother's going through is just so shocking, you know? 'Cause they didn't hate each other, but they made peace because of me, just because of me — B: Wow. G: — because I had no parents. So, um, that's like Crystal and this other woman from that show that I liked, that I grew up with.

[06:25–08:00] (Dynasty TV show discussion) G: Uh, uh, Dynasty? B: Um, I think I've seen Dynasty. G: Of course, everyone has seen Dynasty. They had it here in 2002 — Dynasty is the shit. The women that used to fight each other, threw each other down the stairs. Crystal and — Does it have a lot of Black stars in it? B: Like — no, uh — shit, give me a moment. They had a lot of tribal stuff. It's Crystal and Alexis. G: Dynasty? Do you know Dynasty — the blonde-hair lady, the second wife, and then Crystal, the lady that took up the back house — is it a movie or a show? B: It's a TV show. G: Fucking shit. Let me go to another browser. I want — it's tribal. (Gerald's mom walks by) G: Bye, mom. B: Dynasty — TV series. From 1981? G: Yes, really old, but I liked it. I really liked — I fucking loved that show. Um, hello, Crystal. They have a different way of talking because they have somewhat of the old, non-real English. It's that English between English and — like, the fake TV English for movies. You know the one I'm talking about? B: No. What was it? G: They had a different way of saying things, you know? The accent, the movie accent. You know — the dialect? B: Yeah.

[08:00–09:45] (Life insurance for grandmother) G: So I was thinking about signing up my grandmother for life insurance. There was life insurance for any type of cause. Um, it's 9or10 and something, but I don't think — I just don't think it's what it is. Is there any type of insurance that would cover life but they won't, like, give you a health exam? B: I don't think so. G: Shit.

[09:42–11:08] (New weed hookup via Telegram) G: A guy, friend of mine, texted me. He's like — oh, he met her. We talked on the phone last, and he said, "Oh, I can sell you at 45 half." Wow. B: That's a good price. Is that good? G: A half ounce? B: Half an ounce? That's a lot. G: That can't be that. No, no, no, no. I think it has — I don't know. He said 45. B: Ask if he has grams. G: Well, I haven't seen the bag. I haven't met him yet. So, but he said I could meet him. He lives nearby now. We spoke on the phone through Telegram because I don't like to give my phone number. And, um — yeah, and then he's like, "Oh, I see that." And it's like, "Oh, what's your name?" It's like, "Oh yeah, I'm discreet. I do it from my apartment, but I'm moving to a house, and the apartment is in construction, so people — I bring people, so we have to come to the apartment to come get it.” And then my friend is like, “Oh yeah, but I trust him. I’ve been buying from him directly. Like, even the ones that you smoked at the beginning — it was the one that he had. So it’s good quality. You won’t get fucked up. No other ingredients were added.” B: You like just the gasoline, bleach, Sudafed, battery acid, and just the usual stuff? G: Just the usual, like — no, none of the added Benadryl? B: Dude, what the fuck? G: Don’t rain on my parade. What the fuck? Just the regular stuff. B: Hey, it’s diesel. It’s not unleaded. G: Yeah. B: High quality. An extra dollar a gallon. High quality shit. G: Okay. Well, I’m glad you got a new hookup. Are you mad? B: No. G: Okay. ‘Cause when you come here, you’re gonna try that one. B: Of course. G: I’m not gonna contact the other guy anymore. Yeah, he can go. No, because I texted him because I didn’t have any. I haven’t smoked. I think the last — those little brocks that I had. And ‘cause the other guy that I bought from — I just didn’t like. I didn’t like at all. That’s why I was so adamant to not be more in contact with him — instead of just buying it and then finding out, oh, he’s been out. He has shit. ‘Cause the other guy, when I met him in person — he looked all fucked up. Like, he was just like, “Oh yeah, we do this,” da, da, da. He was in a mess.

[12:03–13:04] (Closing — emotional check-in and plans) B: Well — hope everything works out. G: I’m not gonna meet him tonight. I’m gonna meet him tomorrow ‘cause he’s busy. Tonight I have to do — and I have to wake up early, and I have to set up some things. I’m sorry. And, um, but tomorrow — ‘cause if everything goes well, I can contact Richard, and I can start with the other stuff. I’m just — yeah. And thank you for being patient with me. I’m sorry. B: No, it’s — I never am, but I am. G: I’m sorry. B: Well, thanks for the apology, but it’s not necessary. G: But I think it is because I appreciate you, and I want you to know that I did think about you the whole time. It’s just that when I’m riding a low like this — it takes over a little bit. B: Gotta go through stuff. Yeah. G: All right. Well, let me know when you’re calling. B: Got it. I’ll play piano — got it — and then I’ll text you and check. G: Okay, bye. B: Got it. Got it. Got it.

Notable Moments

- [00:00–00:19] Gerald is going through an emotional low period; Brandon is supportive and reassuring.
- [01:28–01:44] Brandon bought office coffee beans himself ($10 on Amazon) because nobody else did; Robert always tells him to expense things but Nicole is on vacation.
- [05:51–06:21] Gerald’s family situation: grandmother from Virginia, complicated dynamic with first wife; they made peace “because of me” (Gerald had no parents). Emotionally significant for Gerald.
- [08:00–09:45] Gerald asks about life insurance for his grandmother — specifically whether there’s a policy that doesn’t require a health exam. Brandon says he doesn’t think so.

- [09:42–11:08] Gerald found a new weed source through a friend via Telegram; plans to meet him tomorrow. Brandon jokes about it.
 - [12:27–12:50] Gerald mentions contacting “Richard” tomorrow if things go well to start “the other stuff” — context unclear, possibly a separate personal matter.
 - [12:44–12:50] Gerald: “I appreciate you, and I want you to know that I did think about you the whole time. It’s just that when I’m riding a low like this, it takes over a little bit.”

Business Ideas

None discussed in this call. This was a purely personal conversation.

Action Items / Tasks

Brandon’s tasks:

- None explicitly assigned.

Gerald’s tasks:

- Meet new weed hookup tomorrow (via friend’s referral, Telegram contact, lives nearby).
 - Contact “Richard” tomorrow if things go well to start “the other stuff” (context unclear).
 - Text Brandon after piano practice (~9 PM) to set up a call.

Research Reminders

- Life insurance without a health exam: Gerald asked whether this exists for his grandmother. Brandon said he didn’t think so — worth a quick look to confirm or find alternatives (e.g., guaranteed issue life insurance, which typically does not require a medical exam but has lower coverage limits and higher premiums for seniors).

AI Lessons Covered

None. No AI topics, tools, or coaching were discussed in this call. Gerald did briefly use an AI assistant or browser to look up the word “barista” and its Spanish equivalent, but this was casual/incidental, not a teaching moment.

Profile Notes (Gerald — first confirmed call)

This is the first confirmed Gerald recording. Key observations for future identification:

- Voice: Calm, measured, warm. Speaks at a relaxed pace.
- Language: English with Spanish-influenced phrasing (“da, da, da,” “Que rico,” occasionally switches register). Grew up watching Dynasty in 2002 — likely Latin American background.
- Personality markers: Emotionally open, apologetic when he feels he’s been distant, appreciative. Plays piano. Has a grandmother in Virginia. Mentions pageants.
- Speech patterns: Short affirmations (“Yeah,” “Okay,” “Got it” repeated at end of calls). Asks follow-up questions. Uses “da, da, da” as a filler for summarizing what someone said.
- Reference timestamp: Full 14-minute call is the primary voice reference.
